

NZASIA Conference Postgraduate Prize

NZASIA New Zealand Asian
Studies Society Inc

The New Zealand Asian Studies Society (NZASIA) is pleased to sponsor two postgraduate prizes for the best student papers at the 2021 conference. The prizes aim to recognize outstanding student achievement in research on Asia and award students who display a high level of scholarship in their work. We hope the prizes will also motivate students to develop their conference papers for publication. Two prizes will be awarded for the best papers. In addition, we will offer a new prize category, the Southeast Asia Postgraduate Prize, generously funded by the Nicholas Tarling Charitable Trust. Winners will also receive a complimentary one-year full NZASIA membership including a one-year subscription to the New Zealand Journal of Asian Studies. In addition, winners will be invited to submit their papers to the New Zealand Journal of Asian Studies; note, however, that publication is not guaranteed as journal submissions are subject to standard review procedures. Applicants must be currently enrolled postgraduate students registered for the conference. Winners will be announced at the conference.

Submission deadline: 1 November 2021 (extended to 8 November, 5:00 pm)

Eligibility

All currently enrolled postgraduate students who have registered for the conference are eligible to be considered for the prize. Papers submitted should be based on the student's thesis research or other original research on any Asia-related topic and should not have been previously published or recently accepted for publication. Papers focusing on Southeast Asia, on any topic, will be considered for the Southeast Asia Postgraduate Prize. Co-authored papers will not be considered.

Criteria for selection

Papers should demonstrate the following;

- Understanding of topic
- Originality
- Sound methodology
- Scholarship

Submission Guidelines

Students must include the following in their application - a full paper, double-spaced, of approximately 5,000 words, a short abstract (250 words), a completed entry form and a scanned copy of their student ID. All submissions will go through a blind review process. Do not include your name or affiliation in your paper.

Application checklist

Remember to include the following;

- Entry form
- Paper (double-spaced) - approximately 5,000 words and abstract (250 words).
Your name and affiliation must not appear on your paper
